

Faculty Spotlight

Joe Richter, Enrollment Facilitator – Enrollment Services Office

Fox Times: Where did you go to school?

Joe: Bachelor of Arts - Communication @ UW Stevens Point – 2006 graduate and Master of Arts - Organizational Leadership @ Crown College - in progress

Fox Times: When did you begin working at FVTC?

Joe: I have been at FVTC since 9/08/2009

Fox Times: What does your job mean to you?

Joe: Starting the college process can be intimidating for a number of reasons. Throughout my education, I recall a handful of inspirational faculty and staff that helped guide me at pivotal moments. I seek to share that same inspiration with our students.

No two students are alike and the same can be said for the questions and challenges Enrollment Facilitators face on a daily basis. I am proud to serve our students alongside a team of truly dedicated individuals. The best part of my job is twofold – I get to interact with students from ever-changing backgrounds and I have endless opportunities to learn from them.

Fox Times: What are your hobbies?

Joe: Outside of work I enjoy spending time with my wife Amy - we're quickly approaching our one year anniversary in October. I also enjoy photography, camping, working in the yard, and getting together with longtime friends. Being a new homeowner, I am also learning how un-handy I am around the house. Look for me at local hardware store 'do-it-yourself seminars'!

Fox Times: Any other information you would like to share?

Joe: I feel fortunate to be a part of the FVTC family. It's no secret why so many employees have been here for so many years. Our institution provides an outstanding service to our community. Consequently, FVTC employees have a shared sense of pride in knowing how important our work is.

Fox Times: What are your words of wisdom for the students?

Joe: FVTC has a lot of beneficial resources for students; do not hesitate to make them work for you.
